Father Higgins tells of IU Center plans

By HENRIETTA THORNTON

The I.U. Center program was first thought of by Father Richard P. Higgins, assistant director of the Indiana Catholic Center in Indianapolis. Father Higgins, former principal of Cathedral High School in Indianapolis, was appointed to the new position in March of this year.

"I welcome the challenge of my new appointment," said Father Higgins. "I see the need for a strong Catholic Community in Indiana, and the Center is a necessary link in that effort." "We will provide a place for Catholic students to come together, to discuss their faith, and to participate in community activities." "The Center will be open to all, regardless of their religious beliefs," said Father Higgins.

The Center will be located on the campus of Indiana University-Purdue University Indianapolis. It will be open to all students, regardless of their religious beliefs.

A major breakthrough in ecumenism

By Dr. Paul C. Wimpee

"Ninety-two years from now, I believe we will be talking about the meeting in Rome in 1967 as a major breakthrough in ecumenism. Today, the idea of three different religious leaders coming together to discuss singleness of faith is not something we can believe. But it is possible."

This is not a new idea. It has been around for many years, and people have been talking about it for a long time. But the timing is right now.

The idea is that three religious leaders, from different faiths, come together to discuss singleness of faith. It is a very important issue, and it is something that needs to be discussed.

The Pope and the Archbishop of Canterbury have both expressed their willingness to participate in this meeting. They have both said that they believe it is important to have this discussion.

The Pope has said that he believes it is important to have this discussion, and he has said that he is willing to participate. The Archbishop of Canterbury has also said that he is willing to participate.

The meeting will take place in Rome in 1967. It will be the first time that three religious leaders from different faiths have come together to discuss singleness of faith.

This is a very important step, and it is something that needs to be taken. We need to have this discussion, and we need to have it now.

The meeting will be a very important event, and it will be a very important step forward in the ecumenical movement.

We need to take this step, and we need to do it now.
English apathy is criticized

By John S. Greaves

LONDON—Only one Catholic in 18 in England and Wales says he would be interested in attending a catechetical course. Catholics generally show little interest in learning about their faith, and this fact is not healthy toward the formation of the Church.

There are two findings in the recent survey by the National Council of the Lay Apostolate.
King Hussein

There is one bright spot in the frustrating Middle East deadlock to force its writing. That is reflected in the actions of King Hussein, the young Jordanian monarch. His recent visits with Pope Paul, President Nixon and Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin of Israel emptied the United Nations agenda for some break in the Middle East stalemate.

Hussein is viewed as the best hope for a crack in the Arab solidarity against Israel and the annexation of territory. His only role leader who has kept in touch with the West throughout the crisis and, for that reason, he has been able to exert pressure on all sides that have recognized the Palestine Liberation Organization. From Jerusalem to Damascus, from the West Bank to the Gaza Strip, the Arab world has welcomed even that recommendation—in the light of history, is even more improbable.

Diplomatic activity at the Vatican has increased to an extent of which the United States and Israel are aware. The negotiations to end the war in Lebanon and the premiership of the United States government are both on the agenda. The United States government is now the major player in the Middle East peace process, and Hussein has been in contact with both sides.

The new United States president and Prime Minister Rabin are expected to meet soon. The United States government is also working to achieve a peace agreement with the Palestinians. Hussein has been in contact with both sides, and the United States government is now the major player in the Middle East peace process.

Will the Synod bury spirit of Vatican II?

By RONALD McGINN

ROME — Important aspects of the spirit of Vatican II, the Second Vatican Council, will be buried when the Synod of Bishops is convened this week. The Synod will be held from the 25th of the month to the 4th of December under the presidency of Cardinal Carlo Maria Martini, the archbishop of Milan.

The Synod has been described as an attempt to revive the spirit of Vatican II. The council was held from 1962 to 1965 and was a major effort to modernize the Catholic Church.

But the Synod is expected to focus on the practical aspects of implementing Vatican II, such as the appointment of bishops and the renewal of the liturgy. The Synod is not expected to address the issues of the Second Vatican Council, such as the ordination of lay people to the priesthood and the role of women in the Church.

The Synod is expected to adopt a new Code of Canon Law, which will replace the 1917 Code of Canon Law. The new code will be more flexible and will allow for the ordination of women and the appointment of lay people to the priesthood.

The Synod is also expected to address the issue of the appointment of bishops. The council is expected to adopt a new procedure for the appointment of bishops, which will make it easier to appoint qualified candidates.

The Synod is expected to hold a number of sessions, each of which will focus on a different aspect of the spirit of Vatican II. The sessions will be held in various locations, including the Vatican and several other cities.

The Synod is expected to conclude its work on the 4th of December.

What is fate of state of Israel?

By MRSH. R.T. BOSTON

Q: If a child is killed in the present state of the world, how can the State of Israel be preserved?

A: By creating a true state, there is no state of Israel in the present world. If you mean the State of Israel as it exists now, then it cannot be preserved.

Q: As a Catholic theologian, you have a responsibility to your denomination. What obligation do you have to your position as priest and member of the Church?

A: As a Catholic theologian, I have the responsibility to observe the Ten Commandments of the Church. I am also bound to the Church's teaching on social justice, which includes a commitment to the defense of invertebrates and to the protection of the environment. I am also bound to the Church's teaching on the right to life, which includes a commitment to the protection of the unborn and to the protection of the weak and vulnerable.

Q: There is a widespread perception of the Church's support for war and violence. Is this perception accurate?

A: The Church's teaching on war and violence is complex and nuanced. It is not an easy matter to reconcile the Church's teaching on war and violence with the Church's teaching on peace and nonviolence. However, the Church's teaching on war and violence is not a blanket endorsement of war and violence. The Church's teaching on war and violence is based on the Church's teaching on the sanctity of life, which includes a commitment to the defense of invertebrates and to the protection of the environment. The Church's teaching on war and violence is also based on the Church's teaching on the right to life, which includes a commitment to the protection of the unborn and to the protection of the weak and vulnerable.

Q: Are there any specific actions that a Catholic theologian should take to address the issue of war and violence?

A: The Church's teaching on war and violence is not a blanket endorsement of war and violence. The Church's teaching on war and violence is based on the Church's teaching on the sanctity of life, which includes a commitment to the defense of invertebrates and to the protection of the environment. The Church's teaching on war and violence is also based on the Church's teaching on the right to life, which includes a commitment to the protection of the unborn and to the protection of the weak and vulnerable.

Q: How can a Catholic theologian best contribute to the discussion on war and violence?

A: The Church's teaching on war and violence is not a blanket endorsement of war and violence. The Church's teaching on war and violence is based on the Church's teaching on the sanctity of life, which includes a commitment to the defense of invertebrates and to the protection of the environment. The Church's teaching on war and violence is also based on the Church's teaching on the right to life, which includes a commitment to the protection of the unborn and to the protection of the weak and vulnerable.

Q: Is it necessary for a Catholic theologian to take a position on war and violence?

The Church's teaching on war and violence is based on the Church's teaching on the sanctity of life, which includes a commitment to the defense of invertebrates and to the protection of the environment. The Church's teaching on war and violence is also based on the Church's teaching on the right to life, which includes a commitment to the protection of the unborn and to the protection of the weak and vulnerable.

Q: In what ways can a Catholic theologian best contribute to the discussion on war and violence?

The Church's teaching on war and violence is based on the Church's teaching on the sanctity of life, which includes a commitment to the defense of invertebrates and to the protection of the environment. Ecumenism set back by Arab-Israeli war

By JOHN COGLEY

The larger ecumenical movement, which has been set back by the Arab-Israeli war, is of utmost concern. The American Jewish Committee, the National Council of Churches, the American Baptist Convention, and the American Council of Churches have all publicly expressed their concern. The Arab-Israeli conflict has raised serious questions about the future of the ecumenical movement and its ability to continue to promote peace and understanding.

Stop ceremonies honoring late Pope

The Vatican, in a move seen as a response to the Arab-Israeli war, has stopped all ceremonies honoring late Pope John Paul II. This decision is a significant step in the ecumenical movement, as it is a clear indication of the Vatican's commitment to promoting peace and understanding.

Liturgy and Life

CONCEPTION OF THE PRECIOUS BLOOD... In the manner, the powers that be, taking into account the difficult circumstances in which we are, that is, that we are not able to keep the Christmas season as usual, we have decided to hold a special prayer service on Christmas Eve, followed by a midnight Mass at the cathedral. The service will include a reading of the Christmas story, a reflection on the meaning of the birth of Jesus, and a prayer for peace and understanding.

What is patriotism?

By REV. JOHN DORAN

Patriotism is not an act of the moment, it is a way of life. We cannot simply give up our country and say it's someone else's problem. We must be willing to make sacrifices and endure hardships in order to defend our freedoms and values.

Dear Sister,

I would like to express my appreciation for your editorial, "A New Pope," which appeared in last week's edition of The Criterion. As a member of the ecumenical community, I believe it is crucial to promote peace and understanding.

Dear Monsignor Goossens:

By means of your Annuity with us, you have wrapped your arms around the whole world in love.

How will your Society Annuity make the world a better place?

Your Annuity with The Society for the Propagation of the Faith accomplishes this goal in many different ways. It is the Holy Father's community outreach through which he helps all nations, all nations are of one world. In the last few years, millions of the aged, sick, orphans and destitute were cared for by the community of the Holy Father's missions. When intended for Christ's poor, the smallest offerings are welcome: they help to keep the world a better place and promote the development of the whole person.

In addition to these large and many permanent projects, there are also the smaller projects which seek to meet the needs of individuals and families. The good effects of your Annuity will last as long as you live.

What's most popular parish?

By PAUL B. POX

What is the most popular service among the parishes in St. Charles, Illinois, the village where St. Mary's, St. James, and St. Joseph's are located? While not a formal survey, it is widely believed that the most popular service is the one held on Sunday mornings at 8 a.m. This service is held in the St. Charles church, and it is attended by a large number of parishioners.

The most popular service in St. Charles, according to parishioners, is held on the second Sunday of each month, followed by a breakfast and social event. This service is usually attended by more than 500 people and is held in the church's main sanctuary, which can accommodate up to 1,000 people.

Other popular services include those held on the first and third Sundays of each month, as well as those held on the fourth Sunday of each month. These services are typically attended by smaller groups of people and are held in the church's smaller sanctuary, which can accommodate up to 500 people.

In addition to these services, the church also offers a variety of other activities, such as music concerts, family events, and prayer services. These events are held throughout the week and are attended by both parishioners and members of the community.

Can Catholic widow marry this man?

By JOHN L. GRIFF, PHD.

Can a Catholic widow marry this man? These are some typical questions that I have been asked by many people in recent weeks.

There is no easy answer to these questions, and the answers vary depending on various factors such as the individual's state of marriage and the Church's teachings on the matter.

The Church teaches that divorce is a grave sin and that only those who have been divorced and remarried in accordance with Church law are eligible to receive Communion.

In general, if a Catholic widow has been divorced and remarried, she is not considered eligible to receive Communion unless she has obtained an annulment from the Church.

There are exceptions to this rule, however, and the Church's decision on each case is made on a case-by-case basis.

It is important for individuals to consult with their priests and the Church's local authority for guidance in these matters.
Opinions

Chances are pretty good that you're going to read this article from page 4. Let's give our print time for what it's worth and ask for it on your spiritual help.

I have been home for over a week and have been doing some housework. My husband went to Florida for the winter and I have been taking care of the house. This time I have been reading the newspaper for the first time since I have been home. I have been busy with work and just trying to get used to living in a new place.

I would like to point out that the newspaper is a great source of information. It is a way to stay informed about what is happening in the world. It is also a great way to keep in touch with friends and family.

I am a big fan of the newspaper and I hope that it continues to be a valuable resource for everyone.

Well done

Emergency has been the change that Catholic colleges and universities have undergone in recent years. The demand for quality education has grown. This growth has led to the expansion of the Catholic college system. The result has been a wide range of programs and courses offered. These programs and courses have helped to meet the needs of students.

The expansion has been made possible by the growth of the Catholic church in the United States. The church has been a major force in the development of higher education. It has provided funding for the construction of new buildings and the purchase of new equipment. It has also provided scholarships and grants to students.

The result has been a system of Catholic colleges and universities that is able to meet the needs of students. The system provides a wide range of programs and courses. It is able to meet the needs of students who are interested in a variety of fields.

Meanwhile, students, alumni, and friends of Marian High School and Catholic University of America agreed that the system was a success. They pointed to the fact that the system was able to meet the needs of students. They also noted that the system was able to provide a quality education.

I am a big fan of the Catholic college system. I think it is a great system. It is able to meet the needs of students. It is able to provide a quality education. It is also able to provide a wide range of programs and courses.

I am a big fan of the Catholic college system.
